WENT TO SLEEP

Gertrude Telle
At the Depot, and the F. F. V. Paid
No Attention To His Snoring
and Passed Him Up.

Richard Watkins
County Judge Hlee was a visitor to Cincinnati the day following the big storm last week, and of course, the authorities had not been advised of his coming, so the genial Judge was compelled to walk, as there were no cars.

Roe M. Stevens running and the streets could not be very well traversed by autos and in consequence his feet were sore and his feelings worse, as he finally got an auto to take him six squares for $6!

Louise Sproemberg Promising his family that he would be back that night, and every one who knows the Judge knows that he never breaks a promise, he went to the depot in Covington a tired and footsore
Miss Gladys Tomlinson

limb of the law and sat down to read a paper, and while looking over the storm news went to sleep.

Along came C. & O. train No. 4, his last chance to get to this city that night, and the Judge kept on sleeping.

When he awoke he asked a man standing outside when the train was due for Maysville.

John C. White
At that time the train he was waiting for was blowing into Maysville, and the man told him it had passed over an hour before.

And you will have to get him to tell you how he squared things with his good wife when he got home the day after.

Rev. J. W. Simpson
SMITTY GONE.

Omar Dodson
Mr. Charles E. Smith, now of Cleveland, O., who has spent a week's vacation in this city, left Saturday morning, returning to Cleveland with Mr.
John Cochran in his machine. On crossing the Mason-Dixon line, Smitty was heard singing that popular song, "The Girl I Left Behind Me."

Mrs. Ida Spurgeon
Dr. Kahn, the graduate optometrist and optician, will be in his office in the O'Keefe Building today.

WORD FROM LUKE M'LUKE.

The following clipping from Sunday's Enquirer will be of interest to Ledger readers:

(Luke McLuke.)
Thank!

"Dear Luke: Permit me to congratulate you upon your remarkably keen insight in the direction of feminine wearing apparel. One of your latest observations concerning the pec-cator that the women who used to wear rick-rack on her underwear now has a daughter who wears shadow lace on her combination suit is absolutely the condition of affairs. Having been in the business for twenty-five years,

Katherine Calvert
I can vouch for the accuracy of your statement, because I still remember having sold the rick-rack to the ladies, and because today I am selling combination suits with shadow lace to their daughters. Psychology, ethfind their substantial expression in the garb of uncommonly common sense your achievements be productive of wiser than they are.—S. Straus, Maysville, Ky."

Wadsworth Cole
Mr. Chonoweth Smart and party returned in their motor boat Sunday after going through many experiences while in Cincinnati during the storm Wednesday night. He was lucky to Miss A. M. Casey, Health Nurse, return with his boat, for many lanches were sunk while the storm was in progress.

MRS. TIMOTHY MENDEL

Rev. E. C. Jesse
Dies After a Few Hours of Terrible Suffering.

Mrs. T. A. Duke
Mrs. Timothy Mendel, who early Saturday morning was severely burned by gasoline, lingered but a few hours later, when at 11:30 o'clock she passed away, due to the inhaling of Ray B. Cobb

Inflammable gas.

Mrs. Mendel was born in Maysville and lived the sixty-two years of her life in this city. She was Miss Elizabeth Miller before her marriage, her family being one of the old residents
Mrs. Eliza B. Clinger

of the city.

The condition of her husband, Mr.
Timothy Mendel, who was for many years watchman at the cotton factory, and has long since been an invalid, had affected her physically and mentally. Mary E. Clifford

The family lived on the Germantown pike, just outside of the city limits. Mrs. Mendel, besides her husband, is survived by two children,
Fred and Kate, and two brothers,
Jacob and Pete, who are in the har-

John H. Clark
ness business here. The family has lost its best friend and the community a kind resident.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday by Rev. John Darbour at the home. Interment in the Maysville cemetery. The time of the funeral will be stated later.

Mrs. Sallie Grish Thrown Violently To the Ground By Stepping Off
a Street Car Before It Had Stopped.

Andrew S. Clark
Mrs. Sallie Grish, the housekeeper at "The Inn," on East Second street, was painfully injured Saturday night almost in front of her home, "The Inn," in the Fifth Ward.

She was on a street car when the Elizabeth Childs
storm broke about 8 o'clock and it is thought became frightened at the approach of the storm.

When near her home she rang the bell for the car to stop, but did not E. P. Browling

wait until it had stopped, and when she stepped off she fell face down in the street.

A number of men on the car jumped off and picked her up and carried
Dr. Austin Quigley

her into her home, when a physician was summoned.

She was badly bruised about the head, face, arms and body, but was resting easily this morning.

Rev. H. H. Wilhoite
Only a miracle saved the most excellent lady's life, as the car was going pretty fast when she stepped off, and the wonder is that she was not killed outright.

from this smart fabric which we show in a half dozen popular fabric instead of cotton.

A BLUNDER BY THE PRESIDENT.

The first requisite of a good manager of any large business is ability to select competent assistants. No matter how able the manager, the enterprise can not succeed if for any reason the subordinates are not fitted for the positions to which they are assigned, and herein lies the key to the failure of the Wilson administration.

Having had no business experience himself, the President should have made a special effort to secure the assistance of men of large experience in handling important matters, but with one or two exceptions his cabinet appointments were monumental mistakes, and were made for sectional, political or personal reasons apparently without any regard to the fitness or ability of the men.

To the premier position in the cabinet he appointed a man who, while he possessed the power to force Mr. Wilson's nomination upon the Baltimore convention, had never shown any marked business ability, and who would probably never have been heard from were it not for a chance passage in his speech before the Chicago convention in 1896. Mr. Bryan showed his true caliber in his traitorous desertion of his chief at a time when he was most in need of advice and support and this alone is sufficient to mark his appointment as a colossal blunder.

The Secretary of the Navy had given no evidence of his special fitness before his appointment and has given less since: the present Mrs. McAdoo furnishes us with the reason for the appointment of the Secretary of the Treasury, and when serious charges were brought against the Attorney General the President put him out of the way by appointing him to the Supreme Court. And thus it is with almost the entire cabinet.

Any business man of ordinary experience, having at his command as the President does, every citizen of the United States, could have made, with but a short two-weeks' study of the situation, a far better selection than was made by President Wilson, and it is evident that the President himself realizes his blunder, for whenever some problem of real importance arises, he takes personal charge of it or authorizes the employment of an expensive corps of special counsel.

But the head of the organization can not escape responsibility. He had absolute control over the selection of his cabinet, and their incompetence proves his own incapacity as the manager of the largest business concern in the world.

CHERISH AND PROTECT YOUR WIFE.

There was once a miserable beggar who upon being asked why he did not go to work replied that he was afraid to work because work had killed his wife. And there is food for a world of thought in his remark.

There are women in this world who know nothing but work, the hardest kind of grinding, nerve-racking, death dealing and soul destroying toil.

The man finishes his day's work and smokes his pipe in peace, but the wife toils on without cease, washing dishes, ironing, mending, slaving, until ready to drop. And though but a few short years ago the husband solemnly promised to love, cherish and protect that wife, he now appears oblivious to the fact that her life blood is slowly ebbing away in toil too heavy for her frail strength.

Fortunately, such cases are not in the majority, but even one is a crying shame to mankind and none should exist.

Oscar Price, of West Virginia, sees great prosperity ahead. Oscar says it in a newspaper interview—omitting to add that he has just been appointed to a good job as auditor in the Interior Department.

In these days, one never can tell, when one hears the word "court," whether a man is talking about the way he won a woman or the place where he lost her.

The Secretary of Agriculture is out west inspecting the government forests. Next year all the Democrats will be taking to the tall timber.

Lots of strange things are done in the name of precedent.

A Logical Objection.

F. Irving Fletcher at a dinner of advertising men at the Ritz Carlton in New York, said:

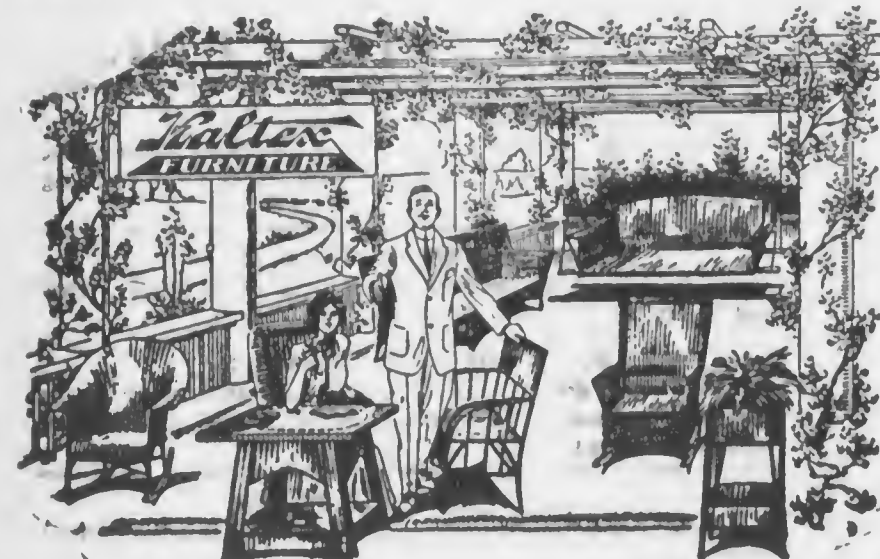

"There is only one logical objection to advertising, and that is the one offered by Joe Doolittle, to the Cincinnatus Semitar.

"Joe why don't you advertise?" said the editor of the Cincinnatus Semitar.

"Because I'm agin' advertisin'." Joe answered firmly.

"But why, Joe, are you against it?" said the editor.

"I don't leave a man no time," said Joe. "I advertised in '90 and the consequence was, I didn't have time to go fishin' by crims, till after McKinley's second election in 1900."

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING IS THE ROAD TO ECONOMY.

Mrs. Lee Lovel

Educating the Grocer.

Mayor Mitchell, of New York City, has a food supply committee working under his direction in an attempt to discover ways of securing food for less money, or, in other words, to reduce the cost of living.

John Lovel

One of the first messages this committee sent out was that food purchased in bulk was from a third to one-half lower in cost than cartons goods. They expected that women would boycott package goods in favor of bulk articles and that food prices would come down at once. But their message was not news to housekeepers who knew well enough that they must pay for fancy packages and the extra labor of packing them and all.

Martha Lovel

For twenty-five years public opinion has been schooled to avoid contaminated foods and for longer than that the public has tried to educate grocers and manufacturers; all persons who handle foods in fact to be cleanly. But education is a matter of slow growth.

Mr. Halton, tobacco man

So the housekeeper, in self-defense, unwillingly pays a high price for foods that are protected in air-tight packages.

Perrine Owens

That all package goods are sanitary is not true but they are convenient to handle and to store in the home larder, and they appeal to the eye, as the best to be had. The New York Food Supply Company says plainly in their report that factories must be inspected as well as groceries and markets, and that sometimes manufacturers are as unconscientious as retailers. They urge women to remember that they hold the remedy for high prices in their own hands, market reports are published for every one to study and if a store displays food in unsanitary ways it is a woman's prerogative to buy elsewhere.

Tom Pearce

Shortage in weight is another important item to consider; the scales are not always to blame, cartons are frequently too heavy, very often sacks and holders that are unnecessarily thick are used. A pair of scales in the home will tell plainly when a purchase is light weight.

Mrs. Mary Brown

New York's mayor is not trying to discriminate against package goods in this investigation, as some persons claim, he is only telling positive facts regarding prices of foods to families who have not had the matter explained.

Mrs. Harry Robinson

The manner in which this knowledge is being disseminated is interesting; it is being sent, in the form of recommendations, to the public school pupils of the great city, the children carry the message of economical buying into the homes.

"And a little child shall lead them."

GOERZ AND GRADISCA.

Mrs. S. Straus

Washington, D. C.—Paralleling the mighty drive from west to east that the Germans are making in Gallia, hundreds of thousands of fresh, well-equipped Italian troops are pressing a rapid invasion against vital points in Austria's Mediterranean empire, and according to news dispatches, the early great battles in this new war theater will find the Italians spread widely over the front of the coastland provinces, well on their way toward Trieste, a port more valuable to Austria than is New York to the United States. A bulletin dealing with the Austrian crownland Goerz and Gradisca, prepared by the National Geographic Society says of this region:

C. L. Mathews

"Through Goerz and Gradisca runs the valley that forms the main artery of traffic of the northwestern Austrian coastlands with the interior. From the Austrian province of Carinthia, in the north, Goerz and Gradisca is bordered by Italy to the Gulf of Trieste. In the northern and central parts, this boundary is very mountainous, a way almost impassable for armies and their supply trains, a way of sharply developed ravines and gullies, of precipices and bare rocky summits, and a way broken through by but a few wild, indifferent passes. In the south, is a coastal plain which allows of far easier access into Austria. It is in this plain that the Italian troops captured the first Austrian towns.

John Watson Mathews

"Carinthia, Istria and Trieste territory bound the province on the east and south, excepting its twenty-five miles of coast along the northern shore of the Gulf of Trieste. The crownland has an area of 1,125 square miles, all the southern part of which is exceedingly fertile and abundant in wine grapes and in fancy fruits. Silk production is, also, one of the rich industries of the plain. Vineyards are everywhere, and the wines rival any of those produced in the Dual Monarchy. The climate of the valley which almost bisects the crownland is one of the mildest, languorous and delightful along the Mediterranean, famed for its many lovely northern stretches where the softest weather reigns. "In the west and north, and in the east, the country is mostly mountainous, or bewilderingly broken and hilly. Higher mountain ranges almost inclose the crownland, the Julian Alps crossing it in the north, the Venetian Alps breaking deeply into its eastern border and mountain series running along its western boundary. Within the province are a number of peaks of more than 8,000 feet. The chief rivers of the province are the Isounzo and the Timavo, the last named the river that issues fully formed from the mountain side, the mysterious river to which the ancients paid wholesome respect.

"The Goerz and Gradisca crownland is not inhabited principally by Italians. More than two-thirds, about 63 per cent of the people are Slovenes, and the remainder are Italians, with an intersprinkling of some 2,400 Germans. The population, according to most recent statistics, is 235,000 people. The population is mainly an agricultural one, being distributed through the provinces in small villages. Goerz, the capital of the crownland and its largest city, only has a population of 25,000. Other principal towns are Cormons, Monfalcone, Kirchheim, Gradisca and Aquileia. Not one of these places counts 6,000 citizens.

"The crownland has no port of any consequence, its short coast line lacking any good harbor site. Grado, its first port, is accessible to the larger kind of coasting vessels. This place has been reported as captured by the Italians. In general, the coast is fringed with alluvial deposits and drifting sandbars. In the time of the Roman world, Aquileia, here, was a noted seaport, but this city has dwindled now to the size of a small village."

Backache is only a simple thing at first.

But if you find 'tis from the kidneys.

That serious kidney troubles may follow.

You will be glad to know the following experience.

"Tis the statement of a Maysville citizen.

Mrs. Della Lunsford, 328 E. Front St., Maysville, Ky., says: "I attributed kidney trouble to a strain. I had sharp shooting pains through my kidneys and a dragging down feeling in my hips. I had dull headaches and dizzy spells and often if I had not caught hold of something for support, I would have fallen. I was in that condition for several years, up one week and bed the next. I finally began to notice symptoms of dropsy. My feet began to swell and my hands were at times the same way. Don't's Kidney Pills, procured at J. J. ## UNITED STATES GIRLS WHO WED TITLES.

Snide Childs
Eloise Breese Becomes Countess of Ancaster.

When Eloise Breese, the charming daughter of the late W. L. Breese, of New York, married Lord Willoughby de Eresby, of London, it was considered a most desirable match, as the young lord was the heir of the wealthy Earl of Ancaster. The Earl of Ancaster died on Christmas Day in 1910, and his eldest son, Lord Willoughby, succeeded to the title and an American girl became the Countess of Ancaster.

Mary M. Nowell
Lord Willoughby and Eloise Breese were married on December 5, 1915, at St. Margaret's church, Westminster. The ceremony drew a large and distinguished gathering, which included the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Princess Patricia of Connaught, Ambassador Whitelaw Reid, Miss Reid, Prince Francis Tech and Lady Darnley, and the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire. A detachment of the Lincolnshire Yeomanry lived the aisles.

Harry C. Curran
The title of Lord Ancaster has only existed in the family for about a quarter of a century, the father having succeeded to this title in 1898. The dukedom of Ancaster came into existence in 1715. It became extinct in 1809 with the death of Browlow de Eresby, to be revived again in 1898 when Baron Willoughby was so significantly honored.

Miss Lucille Agnew
The present Earl of Ancaster is descended from Gilbert de Eresby, who was a court jeweler and Lord Mayor of London in the reign of Queen Anne. The Ancaster estate formerly belonging to the Duke of Ancaster, the Drummond estates, formerly belonging to the earldom of Perth and the Willoughby de Eresby estates have all come into the possession of the present Earl of Ancaster's family through marriage within the last hundred years, and there is no peer of the British realm whose properties, especially the Drummond estates, have been more frequently claimed by people hailing from America.

George Dodson
Among them have been a Mrs. Bond, of New York, who claims to be the daughter of Frederick Burrell Drummond, whom she alleges came to America in 1835 and married in New York. While the pedigree and works of reference make no mention of his death and leave it to be supposed that he disappeared in the United States, it is a fact that if he had survived his mother, he would have inherited the Willoughby de Eresby peerage as well as the Drummond estates in lieu of his sister Annabella, who married Sir Gilbert Heathcote, first Lord Aveland and grandfather of Lord Ancaster.

Mrs. George Dodson
One of the other claimants has been the daughter of Lord Drummond, grandson of the late Earl of Perth. She resided for many years in Brooklyn. Lord Drummond died in St. Luke's hospital after having earned his living for a time in New York as ticket chopper on the elevated railroad and as a reporter of one of the leading metropolitan daily newspapers.

Mrs. Raymond Dora
The Earl and Lady Ancaster reside when in London in Chesterfield Gardens, but their favorite residence is Drummond Castle, their Scotch estate, the whole of great architectural beauty. It is situated in a park of some 75,000 acres, richly wooded. The southeastern tower dates back to the time of Henry III.

Mitchell Matthews
Drummond Castle stands about three miles southwest of Creff and the castle gates are reached through grand old avenues, which are stated to be without equal in the United Kingdom. The oldest part of the castle dates from 1491, when it was built by the first Lord Drummond, a nobleman whose ancestors descended from the ancient kings of Hungary, came to Scotland with Prince Edward Atheling of England when they fled from the latter country after the death of King Harold, and the battle of Hastings in 1066.

Joe Edmund Matthews
The castle is still surrounded by the world-famed Drummond gardens, laid out by John, second Earl of Perth, in the middle of the seventeenth century.

John Tom Mackey

There are few abodes in the United Kingdom more replete with historic memories, for the house of Drummond furnished no less than three queens of Scotland, the best known of all being that Lady Margaret Drummond, consort of King James.

Mrs. John Tom Mackey
She was poisoned at Drummond Castle, along with her two sisters, in order to enable her husband to marry Princess Margaret of England. Mary Charles Viceroy Queen of Scots was a frequent visitor to Drummond Castle, and her son, King James I of England, likewise often stayed there. Prince Charles Edward, the Jacobite pretender, slept there on the eve of the fearful battle of Culloden.

Terry Mackey
Eloise Breese was the eldest daughter of W. L. Breese. Several years after the death of her father, her mother married H. V. Wiggins, an English solicitor. She was his second wife, his first being a daughter of the Earl of Winchester and Nottingham. The Higginsons reside at present in London.

George L. Diener
At the wedding of Eloise to the Earl the stepfather gave the bride away. The bridesmaids were the Ladies Willoughby and Dorothy Ousley, and then Gladys Fellows and Miss Anne Breese, the latter having married Lord Alastair Innes-Ker in 1907.

Fred Diener
The bride was also attended by four children, the Ladies Blanche and Diana Somerset, daughters of the Duke of Beaufort, and the Misses Moyra Goff and Peigle Cavendish.

Miss Thelma Brown

CONTROLLING THE APPLE BORER

Master Chris Russell
Means By Which Orchardists May Rid Their Trees of This Wide-Spread Pest.

Harry Robinson
Washington, D. C.—"Worming" and painting the trunks of the trees are recommended to owners of apple orchards as efficient methods of dealing with the roundheaded apple tree borer in a new Farmers' Bulletin, No. 675, of the United States Department of Agriculture. A heavy application of some paint that will not injure the trees, but will remain in an unbroken coat on the bark for two or three months, is effective in preventing the female from laying her eggs in the tree, and greatly reduces the amount of worming, or the removal of the insects with a knife and wire, that must be done.

Andrew Clooney
The roundheaded apple tree borer, the most destructive of a number of similar pests, lays its eggs in or under the bark of apple trees. After hatching the larvae feed upon the inner bark and wood to such an extent that the tree is seriously weakened or killed. The pest is found over the whole of the eastern portion of the United States and as far west as Nebraska, Kansas and New Mexico. In addition to fruit trees, it feeds on service, wild cherry and mountain ash trees, which makes it advisable for orchardists to remove these varieties for a distance of at least a hundred yards from their orchard.

James Brown
The female lays her eggs, one at a time, in an incision she has made in the bark, usually just above the surface of the ground. About fifteen or twenty days later the eggs hatch and the larvae appear. When full grown these are nearly an inch and a half in length. They first attack the inner bark, eating out broad, more or less circular galleries and thrusting out through small holes in the bark castings which form little heaps of reddish wood fragments around the base of the tree. During the winter the borers are quiescent but early in the following spring they attack the solid wood, while some of them work their way up the trunk. These spend one more winter in the tree and then, having passed through the pupal stage, dig their way out and emerge as adult beetles. Three years are required for the insect to complete its development from egg to adult.

Miss Alexine Russell
Ordinarily the beetle lives about forty or fifty days. It is about three-fourths of an inch in length, light brown in color above, with two broad white bands, joined in front, extending the full length of the back; the underparts and front of the head are white. The females rarely fly any considerable distance, so that if the immediate vicinity of an orchard can be kept free from them, there is little danger of a serious infestation.

Kelly Luman
The most common method of ridding an orchard of these pests is to cut away the bark sufficiently to trace the burrows made by the borer. A hooked wire is then inserted into the burrow and the insect pulled out. If made with care, the wound in the tree caused by this process will heal readily. The castings at the base of the tree serve as an indication of the presence of the borers. Where the burrows are curved or obstructed in some way so that the wire can not be inserted, cotton batting dipped in carbon bisulphide should be inserted and the hole then plugged with moist earth. The gas from the carbon bisulphide will penetrate all parts of the burrow and kill the borer.

Mrs. Frank Miller
In addition to worming, as this process is called, paint is often used to prevent the beetles laying their eggs. Pure white lead and raw linseed oil, mixed rather thick, will not injure the trees, and when applied to young, smooth bark, will form a protective coat during the egg-laying season. It is probable that this is a more effective manner than wrapping the trees with building paper, cotton batting, cloth or other materials sometimes used for this purpose. Before painting, however, the earth should be removed from the base of the tree for a depth of from three to four inches. The surface of the trunk thus exposed should be first scraped and painted and the earth then replaced. This is necessary, for the beetle occasionally lays her eggs under instead of above the ground.

Mrs. Courtney Maguire

Albacore and tuna, fish which until recently have been found only in the Mediterranean in sufficient quantities to form the basis of an industry, are said now to be caught in enormous quantities along the coast of southern California.

"PALESTINE."

Virginia Watkins
Washington, D. C.—A demand for the complete neutralization of the Holy Land, which has been growing in strength since the entry of Turkey into the war, and which would take away Palestine from the domination of the Ottoman, and conserve and develop it as a shrine and museum for mankind, lends fresh interest to the observations upon this center of world pilgrimage, recently prepared by James Bryce, former British ambassador to the United States, for the National Geographic Society. That Palestine, after all, would not be so great a reservation for mankind, in point of area, appears in the comments of Lord Bryce upon its size: "Palestine is a tiny little country. Though the traveler's handbooks prepare him to find it small, it surprises him by being smaller than he expected. Taking it as the region between the Mediterranean on the west and the Jordan and the Dead sea on the east, from the spurs of Lebanon and Hermon on the north to the desert at Beersheba on the south, it is only 110 miles long and from fifty to sixty broad—that is to say, it is smaller than New Jersey, whose area is 7,500 square miles.

"Of this region large parts did not really belong to Israel. Israel had, in fact, little more than the hill country, which lay between the Jordan on the east and the maritime plain on the west. King David, in the days of his power, looked down from the hills cities of Benjamin, just north of Jerusalem, upon Philistine armies only twenty-five miles off, on the one side, and looked across the Jordan to Moabite enemies about as far off, on the other.

"Nearly all the events in the history of Israel that are recorded in the Old Testament happened within a territory no bigger than the state of Connecticut, whose area is 4,800 square miles; and into hardly any other country has there been crowded from the days of Abraham until our own time so much history—that is to say, so many events that have been recorded and deserve to be recorded in the annals of mankind."

Master Will Watkins
Nor is the Palestine of today so beautiful or so rich a country, as was painted by the Jews just emerging from the barren, comfortless desert. Its centuries of misgovernment and warfare have mightily assisted its somewhat stepmotherly nature in crushing out development, according to Lord Bryce; wherefore the present day proposal that this land at last be given rest and opportunity by neutralizing it and making it the care of all the nations is overdue. Palestine is a land of ancient strife and seldom interrupted slaughter. Lord Bryce explains and more than fourteen centuries of sad misrule have done their fatal work upon its physical appearance.

"Palestine is a country poor in any natural resources. There are practically no minerals, no coal, no iron, no copper, no silver, though recently some oil wells have been discovered in the Jordan valley. Neither are there any large forests, and though the land may have been better wooded in the days of Joshua than it is now, there is little reason to think that the woods were of trees sufficiently large to constitute a source of wealth. A comparatively small area is fit for tillage.

W. D. Cochran
"Such wealth as the country has consists in its pastures, and the expression 'a land flowing in milk and honey' appropriately described the best it has to offer, for sheep and goats can thrive on the thin herbage that covers the hills, and the numerous aromatic plants furnish plenty of excellent food for the bees; but it is nearly all this pasture, for the land is dry and the soil mostly shaly. The sheep and goats vastly outnumber the oxen."

Lord Bryce contrasts the beauty of Greece and Palestine. In both lands, he says, the traveler finds charm everywhere because of the traditions and history that hallow them. In practical reality, however, a great part of Greece is painfully dry and bare, and there is little striking beauty to be found in the Holy Land. The reverence and piety for spots hallowed by religious associations which the pilgrim brings to the places through which he wanders in Palestine, Lord Bryce says, causes him to see this land through a golden haze that makes its appear lovely.

LET THE HOT RAISE CHICKENS.

Most boys want pets, some dogs, some cats, some rabbits and so on, something alive. Then why not give them pets which will not only pay for their keep but also net a profit and help reduce the grocery and butcher bills. There is something to such pets—yes, more to it than most fathers and mothers realize.

"SCUTARI."

Mrs. W. D. Cochran
Washington, D. C.—After weeks of silence, the news comes that the persistent little army of Montenegro has taken to itself Scutari, the principal city and fortress of Albania, which fell before the victorious Montenegrins in the first Balkan war, and from which the soldiers of the mountain kingdom were compelled to retire by the action of Austria-Hungary. The Montenegrins have had considerable practice in attacking Scutari through their 500 years of intermittent struggle with the Turks, and all of the problems involved in an advance by the side of the Lake of Scutari to the city between the mountains are doubtless thoroughly known to the veteran military leaders of the tiny state. A description of this city, a strategic point for the domination of northern Albania, is given in the most recent statement of the National Geographic Society, issued in its series of war-geography studies. The statement reads:

Mrs. C. L. Matthews
"Scutari has military value as commanding northern Albania, and as being a key position on the northern head of the plain that stretches from the town into the country's interior. It is the most important city in the newly created Albanian nation, having a population of more than 32,000, and some transit and export trade. It has lost considerable of its commerce, however, to Salonica and other neighboring ports which enjoy the advantages of good railway connections. Another disadvantage under which Scutari suffers is the lack of all port facilities upon its convenient seacoast.

Eunna Schwartz
"Situated beyond the flat, fever-laden coastlands and just beyond the coastal hills, Scutari is effectively closed away from the world, even for Albania. It is built upon the southeastern shore of Lake Scutari, near the confluence of the Drin and Boudina rivers. The Adriatic lies little more than fourteen miles to the west. The greater part of the Lake of Scutari, since the settlements brought about by the First Balkan War, is contained within the Montenegrin borders. The city of Scutari lies just across the Montenegrin boundary, but a short, evening-hour's walk away. The lake is surprisingly beautiful; its waters are brilliantly clear, the growth upon its banks luxurious, while the heavy-shouldered mountains, which give it a setting like a gem in a ring, greatly increase the effect of the picture. There are numerous, heavily-populated breeding grounds by its shores for aquatic fowl, and the lake, itself, is well stocked with fish.

"The country all around the city is wild—as is most of the area of Albania—and very sparsely settled. The individual Albanian builds him a home, a hut, in the forest on the spur of

DAINTY FOOD

Turns Pale Checks To Pink.

Our best physicians of the present day seek to cure patients by the use of food and right living, rather than heavy drugs, and this is the true method, for only from food can the body be rebuilt.

Many people, after living on poorly selected or badly cooked food for a long time, and when their ailments become chronic, expect the doctor, with some magic potency, to instantly rebuild them.

"This is not possible. The only true method is to turn as quickly as can be, from poor food to good. A young lady in Ohio says:

"I was variously treated for my nerves, stomach, lungs, etc, but none of the treatments gave me relief. 'About a year ago when my appetite failed completely and I began to have sinking spells similar to fainting, I took all manner of tonics and stimulants, but they were of no effect. I had been brought to quit drinking coffee and taking Postum in its place and gradually began to get a little better.

"Some one suggested that if I found Postum so beneficial, I had better use Grape-Nuts food, as they were both the children of one brain. I commenced on Grape-Nuts food for breakfast, having Postum with it. I found the food so dainty, delicious and appetizing that I always looked forward to breakfast with pleasure.

"Shortly after commencing this diet, the wretched pain in my side was greatly relieved, and now a year later, it has one entirely, also the sinking spells; in fact, my pale cheeks have changed to pink. I have gained back more than the twenty pounds I lost, and run thoroughly well in every way." Name given by Postum Co., Little Creek, Mich. Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason." Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

country. The easiest way to progress from Scutari is along the plain, which extends from across the Montenegrin frontier south to Alessio. It is largely owing to the wild, uncharted mountain-and-ravine ways of Albania that the Turks were never able completely to subdue this people, but were forced to govern them by a diplomatic distribution of favor.

Abble Downey
"Oriental and picturesque in appearance, there is, however, little to suggest well-being or wealth in the Albanian metropolises. Its bazaars and mosques are interesting, and its old Venetian citadel perched upon its high crag is a romantic object. The citadel and other fortifications of the town are long out of date, and would offer little or no resistance to modern artillery. Mountains crowd in upon the town, and there is danger of floods during heavy rains or sudden thaws. The exports of Scutari are grains, wool, hides, skins, tobacco and such. It imports textiles, provisions, metal products and arms. Arms and cotton stuffs are manufactured. Arms are an important article of commerce in Albania; for, while the Albanians have accustomed himself to going without almost everything, he will not go without a rifle."

Ruth Hall
Imports of merchandise has at this date exceeded $1,000,000,000, surpassing by nearly $400,000,000 the highest record hitherto made.

The upward flow of gold which became pronounced about the commencement of the current year continued in May at an accelerated rate. Lucy Baldwin

Many of the calves in the west are fed a ration consisting of corn stover, prairie hay and sometimes some corn, as a grain ration. Such a ration is deficient in protein, and the animals will not do well on it. But if good clover hay is substituted for some of the roughage in this ration, the animals will make good gains at a less cost.

ONLY SIXTEEN, GIRL VERY SICK

Tells How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

New Orleans, La.—"I take pleasure in writing these lines to express my gratitude to you. I am only 16 years old and work in a tobacco factory. I have been a very sick girl but I have improved wonderfully since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now looking fine and feeling a thousand times better."

—Miss AMELIA JAQUILLARD, 3961 Tchoupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.

St. Clair, Pa.—"My mother was alarmed because I was troubled with suppression and had pains in my back and side, and severe headaches. I had pimples on my face, my complexion was sallow, my sleep was disturbed, I had nervous spells, was very tired and had no ambition. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has worked like a charm in my case and has regulated me. I worked in a mill among hundreds of girls and have recommended your medicine to many of them."

—Miss ESTELLE MACTURE, 119 Thwing St., St. Clair, Pa.

There is nothing that teaches more than experience. Therefore, such letters from girls who have suffered and been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be a lesson to others. The same remedy is within reach of all.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and kept in the strict confidence.

To Present Three Famous Plays Here at Beechwood On

July 19 and 20.

Sallie Burgess

Maysville is indeed to have a rare literary treat here on Monday and Tuesday of next week, when the celebrated Devereaux Players, featuring

Miss Mary Ward Holton, formerly of this county, as the leading lady in "She Stoops to Conquer," "As You Like It" and "The Fee Unexpected."

Miss Holton is a native of this county, was born near Washington, Ky., and has a large number of relatives living in Maysville and Mason county, who are more than gratified to learn of her wonderful histrionic ability. She is considered by critics as one of the best leading ladies portraying Shakespearean characters now on the

George Ellet

J. P. Schatzmann

American stage. Column after column could be written about her deep conception of the characters she portrays.

Riley Ishmael

trays, and the able manner in which she handles them.

For several years she was the leading lady with one of America's foremost actors and during that time she received unstinted praise at the hands of the press and theatrical critics. Her character readings are something marvelous and must be seen to be appreciated. Every resident of Mays-

Mrs. Mattie Harbourn

vile and Mason county ought to greet her upon her first appearance on the stage in Maysville.

It was by the hardest work that the Mason County Woman's Club, under whose auspices she appears in Maysville, were able to make arrangements for her to give a series of performances here.

Freddie Diener

Let the pride of Mason county show itself upon this occasion and give our Miss Holton a rousing reception.

Susan Thompson

State Aid for County Roads.

Matt Lindsay

Mason county will get some state aid for its turnpikes at last.

Last week Circuit Judge Newell and County Attorney Rees went to Frankfort to make a try for a portion of the pie to be handed around to the various counties in the commonwealth on condition they do certain things.

After putting up their very best arguments in behalf of the Mason county section of the Garden of Eden, they were rewarded by being told that they were undoubtedly entitled to something, and this something will be forthcoming upon the county officials getting busy and performing

Inabelle Gettes

Willie Earl Jacob

their part, and they began business today.

The turnpike story in Mason county is about as follows:

The recent rains have so badly washed the pikes that they are in a condition that calls for immediate action on the part of those in charge of them, but the lack of funds has caused a hitch. Besides there are three bridges that will have to be attended to, the cost of which will be about $7,000, and this, added to the cost of building the pike up to the bridges, $1,600, was beyond the county's means.

James Dale

William Foley

Now as to the state aid:

Willie Jones

If the county will build a mile of model road under state supervision, to extend from the city limits to the first bridge to be rebuilt, the state will stand half of the expense, and also half of the expense of the repairs to the bridges mentioned.

This will make the county's actual outlay only half of the total cost of this important work—in other words, the county will pay $3,500 for $7,000 worth of improvements that have to be made.

Mike Donovan

This particular work is on the Maysville and Mt. Sterling turnpike, Arnold Hayes and it is a cinch that County Judge W. H. Rice and his assistants will get busy and gobble that $3,500.
